

ANTI-SLAVERY MEETING IN MANCHESTER.— On Wednesday, the Manchester Athenaeum was crowded, and hundreds were unable to obtain admission, on the occasion of a lecture being delivered by Miss Remond, a lady of colour, from Salem, Massachusetts, U.S., on American slavery. The mayor, Ivie Mackie, Esq., presided, and introduced Miss Remond. She delivered an eloquent and touching address. In the early part of her discourse, she gave a general outline of the extent to which slavery prevailed in America. She read extracts from the laws, showing it to be penal to teach either the slaves or the poor whites to read; and mentioned the names of persons suffering imprisonment for the violation of such laws. Deep regret was expressed that England had ever given up the right of search, as the African slave trade was fast reviving in consequence. Various details were given, which frequently elicited cries of "Shame" from the audience, especially at the fact of slavery being supported by the different religious (?) denominations. She urged her audience to use all their moral influence against the iniquitous system, by speaking strongly against it. Heart-stirring appeals were then made by Mr. Henry Vincent, the Rev. S. May, of New York, and others, in favour of the Society for the Abolition of Slavery. Thanks were voted to Miss Remond and the Rev. Mr. May for their addresses. On the motion of the Rev. Mr. Steinthal, seconded by Mr. Shuttleworth, the following resolution was carried unanimously:—

That this meeting deplores the continued existence of slavery in the United States, proclaims its sympathy with the anti-slavery cause, and resolves to spare no effort to put an end to an evil baneful alike to slave and slaveholder, and perilous to the safety of the commonwealth.

ANTI-SLAVERY MEETING IN MANCHESTER.— On Wednesday, the Manchester Athenaeum was crowded, and hundreds were unable to obtain admission, on the occasion of a lecture being delivered by Miss Remond, a lady of colour, from Salem, Massachusetts, U.S., on American slavery. The mayor, Ivie Mackie, Esq., presided, and introduced Miss Remond. She delivered an eloquent and touching address. In the early part of her discourse, she gave a general outline of the extent to which slavery prevailed in America. She read extracts from the laws, showing it to be penal to teach either the slaves or the poor whites to read; and mentioned the names of persons suffering imprisonment for the violation of such laws. Deep regret was expressed that England had ever given up the right of search, as the African slave trade was fast reviving in consequence. Various details were given, which frequently elicited cries of "Shame" from the audience, especially at the fact of slavery being supported by the different religious (?) denominations. She urged her audience to use all their moral influence against the iniquitous system, by speaking strongly against it. Heart-stirring appeals were then made by Mr. Henry Vincent, the Rev. S. May, of New York, and others, in favour of the Society for the Abolition of Slavery. Thanks were voted to Miss Remond and the Rev. Mr. May for their addresses. On the motion of the Rev. Mr. Steinthal, seconded by Mr. Shuttleworth, the following resolution was carried unanimously:—

That this meeting deplores the continued existence of slavery in the United States, proclaims its sympathy with the anti-slavery cause, and resolves to spare no effort to put an end to an evil baneful alike to slave and slaveholder, and perilous to the safety of the commonwealth.