

Mrs. Emeline Sullivan delivered a most excellent address on mental improvement, to a rather small audience, which feature was no doubt caused by the weather, it being a rainy evening and bad walking. The lecture was illustrated by numerous examples of men who have risen from the humble walks of life to wealth and influence, by means of mental culture, and rigid application to study. Some of the examples cited were those of Christopher Columbus, George Washington, Robert Fulton, Roger Sherman, and Touissant L'Ouverture. The mention of Touissant's noble and manly course, elicited considerable applause. Mrs. Sullivan is a lady of extraordinary ability, has a vast amount of useful information at command, and details facts with ease and grace. She is modest and unassuming, temperate in her choice of words and phrases, and very earnest in her manner. She did not let the opportunity pass of giving some wholesome advice in regard to training our children when young, and being herself a school teacher and one of the despised race, she spoke from experience. The lecture gave much satisfaction.

Mrs. Emeline Sullivan delivered a most excellent address on mental improvement, to a rather small audience, which feature was no doubt caused by the weather, it being a rainy evening and bad walking. The lecture was illustrated by numerous examples of men who have risen from the humble walks of life to wealth and influence, by means of mental culture, and rigid application to study. Some of the examples cited were those of Christopher Columbus, George Washington, Robert Fulton, Roger Sherman, and Touissant L'Ouverture. The mention of Touissant's noble and manly course, elicited considerable applause. Mrs. Sullivan is a lady of extraordinary ability, has a vast amount of useful information at command, and details facts with ease and grace. She is modest and unassuming, temperate in her choice of words and phrases, and very earnest in her manner. She did not let the opportunity pass of giving some wholesome advice in regard to training our children when young, and being herself a school teacher and one of the despised race, she spoke from experience. The lecture gave much satisfaction.