

Elder Shelton, then proceeded to address the people on the great subject of emancipation which took place in the British West India Islands, on the first day of August in the year of our Lord 1838, at which time eight hundred thousand of our fellow beings were set at liberty. But when we come to consider that there are three millions of our fellow men yet under the oppressive yoke of the tyrant; we still have much to pray for. During the time that the Elder was addressing the assembly a small cloud passed over and the audience was somewhat disturbed by the falling of a little rain. Here the Elder told the people not to be disturbed, for God had a hand in the matter. He then treated at some length on the prejudice of color, and in the course of his speech he made some beautiful quotations, such as the displeasure of God shown upon Aaron and Miriam, relative to the marriage of Moses, with an Ethiopian woman. He then cited us to what took place at Alton, Illinois, where the first Martyr of American liberty was inhumanly murdered; but, said he, many young insects have been created for every drop of Lovejoy's blood that was spilt on that occasion, having reference to to the abolitionists of the present day.

Elder Shelton, then proceeded to address the people on the great subject of emancipation which took place in the British West India Islands, on the first day of August in the year of our Lord 1838, at which time eight hundred thousand of our fellow beings were set at liberty. But when we come to consider that there are three millions of our fellow men yet under the oppressive yoke of the tyrant; we still have much to pray for. During the time that the Elder was addressing the assembly a small cloud passed over and the audience was somewhat disturbed by the falling of a little rain. Here the Elder told the people not to be disturbed, for God had a hand in the matter. He then treated at some length on the prejudice of color, and in the course of his speech he made some beautiful quotations, such as the displeasure of God shown upon Aaron and Miriam relative to the marriage of Moses, with an Ethiopian woman. He then cited us to what took place at Alton, Illinois, where the first Martyr of American liberty was inhumanly murdered; but, said he, many young insects have been created for every drop of Lovejoy's blood that was spilt on that occasion, having reference to to the abolitionists of the present day.